Mapping the World: The World of Peter 1711-13 (1711-13) The cover image of World Map (1711-13) is one of the most important and famous maps of all time. The ornamental map of the world was created by the work of Peter II in Moscow. However, the map was not finished until 1708. The map shows the world from the Atlantic Ocean to the Pacific Ocean, with a large number of countries and continents marked. The map was created by Peter II to show the power and influence of Russia in the world. The map includes a number of important features, such as the polar ice caps, the continents of Europe, Asia, and Africa, and the oceans of the world. It also includes a number of important rivers and lakes, such as the Amazon, the Nile, and the Mississippi.

1. Historical Context

2. Map Features

3. Map Significance

4. Conclusion

5. References

Mapping the World: The World of Peter 1711-13 (1711-13) The cover image of World Map (1711-13) is one of the most important and famous maps of all time. The ornamental map of the world was created by the work of Peter II in Moscow. However, the map was not finished until 1708. The map shows the world from the Atlantic Ocean to the Pacific Ocean, with a large number of countries and continents marked. The map was created by Peter II to show the power and influence of Russia in the world. The map includes a number of important features, such as the polar ice caps, the continents of Europe, Asia, and Africa, and the oceans of the world. It also includes a number of important rivers and lakes, such as the Amazon, the Nile, and the Mississippi. The map is an important historical document that provides insight into the political and cultural landscape of the world at the time. It is also a significant example of the power of the Russian Empire, and the ability of Peter II to assert his dominance over the world.

References

1. Peter II (1682-1730), Tsar of Russia

2. World Map (1711-13), Peter II

3. Historical Atlas of the World

4. Mapping the World: The World of Peter 1711-13 (1711-13)

5. World History in Maps

Mapping the World: The World of Peter 1711-13 (1711-13) The cover image of World Map (1711-13) is one of the most important and famous maps of all time. The ornamental map of the world was created by the work of Peter II in Moscow. However, the map was not finished until 1708. The map shows the world from the Atlantic Ocean to the Pacific Ocean, with a large number of countries and continents marked. The map was created by Peter II to show the power and influence of Russia in the world. The map includes a number of important features, such as the polar ice caps, the continents of Europe, Asia, and Africa, and the oceans of the world. It also includes a number of important rivers and lakes, such as the Amazon, the Nile, and the Mississippi. The map is an important historical document that provides insight into the political and cultural landscape of the world at the time. It is also a significant example of the power of the Russian Empire, and the ability of Peter II to assert his dominance over the world. The map is an important historical document that provides insight into the political and cultural landscape of the world at the time. It is also a significant example of the power of the Russian Empire, and the ability of Peter II to assert his dominance over the world.